WEALTH OF CENTRAL ASIA

Building of Railroad Has Revealed to the World the Variety of Products Grown There.

Since the construction of the Transcaspian railroad, which opened up markets in European Russia, and consequently abroad, for the products of Russia's central Asian possessions, these regions have proved themselves a source of great wealth, not only because of their cotton and silk, but also because of the magnificent fruit which is being raised there in increasing quantities—luscious and fragrant apples, which turn translucent in the sun; apricots, pomegranates, figs, etc. The gardens of central Asia are able to grow an extraordinary variety of products. Fruit culture is also increasing in the Caucasus and southern Russia; extensive orange plantations have been set out and their fruit has become extremely popular now that the war has cut off the usual supply of oranges from Italy. Land is being reclaimed and set out in fruit farms around Astrakhan. The Crimea, with its extremely mild climate, has, of course, always been a great fruit-growing center, and Bessarabia, near the Roumanian frontier, is particularly noted for its apples and vineyards. The Russians are very fond of fruit, particularly dried or in the form of fruit pastes or preserves, often using jam in their tea instead of sugar.—Geographical Review.

CARRYING THE HOD.

"What role are you now enacting in the drama of life?" asked Stormington Barns.
